

Sapporo

Without wishing to make a detailed study comparable with that of Grenoble, we thought it would be useful to give some figures on the Olympic Winter Games of Sapporo. Their literature is full of interest, particularly the comparison of the expenses involved in the Xth and XIth Olympic Winter Games

The amounts are expressed in dollars, and we have converted, below, certain figures and regrouped certain sections.

For example, the total cost of investment in sport rose to nearly 30 million dollars or 120 million Swiss Francs (Grenoble: 7 and a half million Swiss Francs). On the other hand, the Olympic Village and the Press Centre cost only 22 million dollars or about 90 million Swiss Francs (Grenoble: 200 million Swiss Francs).

It is still too early to try and draw any conclusions from these figures. It remains to be seen what use will be made of the equipment and the installations, before we can say whether or not the money spent has served the development of winter sports in Japan and also to ascertain if Asia has improved its knowledge of these new events.
