

DOCUMENTS

Today we begin the publication of the latest work by Mr. Cleanthis Paleologos, Legends of Olympia. Our readers are already well acquainted with this talented Hellenist whose studies we have reproduced in numbers 40/41, 48 and 60/61 of the Olympic Review. Mr Paleologos has given the Olympic Review his authority, on an exceptional basis, to reproduce Legends of Olympia chapter by chapter. We therefore draw our readers' attention to the fact that it is forbidden to reprint extracts of this work in other publications and that the copyright of the article belongs to Mr Paleologos.

Dr Berthold Fellmann a German archaeologist, recently delivered a lecture in Madrid with the title The History of Excavations at Olympia. You will find the text further on.

These excavations, undertaken at the end of the last century, are far from completed and are the object of regular campaigns. The last one ended in 1966 and the experts have since embarked upon the inventory and examination of their finds, which will enable them to draw up a new plan for the next campaign.

Finally, from the pen of Mr José Maria Cagigal, Director of the Spanish Institute of Physical Education, we bring you a description and reconstitution of the Olympia of yesterday and today, taken from an article entitled "The Olympic Success" which is a chapter in the book Sport, Pedagogy and Humanism by José Maria Cagigal, published in Madrid under the care of the Spanish Olympic Committee. We felt it necessary to link the pictures of ancient Greece with those of contemporary Greece in order to understand better the Olympism of today.
