

Art and sport

Sculpture

Crossing Tower Place, Londoners can admire for several months "The Hammer Thrower", sculpted by the artist John Robinson, in bronze fibre glass. This work was offered to the City of London and was inaugurated on 7th December 1973. We would like to thank Mr. John Hennessy, sports reporter of The Times, for having procured the reproduction of this statue for us (see our photograph).

"The Hammer Thrower" by John Robinson

"Gymnast" by Ugo Attardi

Painting

For three years, the Italian National Olympic Committee is proposing for the sports world and art critics collections of engravings done by artists of repute with sport as the only theme. This year, the new section reproduces the works of Ugo Attardi, Sergio Ceccocci, Altione Gubellini, Eva Fisher, Bugli, Kokocurski, Crudino, Berto, Enotrio, Carrevari and Mario Russo. We regret only being able to publish three of these.

"Sailing" by Altione Gubellini

The young girl and her bow by Sergio Cec-cocci.

Cinema

Among fifty long and short film lengths from fourteen countries shown during the recent International Festival of Sports Films organised by the "Comité International de diffusion des arts et lettres par le cinéma" in Reims (France) from 28th to 31st March, the jury honoured a Soviet work entitled "Men and Women" realised by Vladimir Khmelitski. This short length traces the dreams of two children, the one, a young hockey player, dreams of reaching international level and the other is a ballerina who desires to join the Bolshoi. The honours list also included "Easy Sport" by Raymond Zanchi (Madagascar) on sports education, "Around the Nets" on sports education by Jacques Doilu (France) and a lively and sparkling documentary on the history of football, "Goals, Tears and Victories" by Bengh Von Zur and Muhlen Jost von Moor (Germany).

- The Executive Committee of the PASO (Panamerican Sports Organisation) will meet from 29th November to 1st December 1974 in Sao-Paulo Brazil, to study the preparations for the XIth Panamerican games, which will take place there from 26th April to 11th May 1975.