

Marc Hodler,
President of the Fédération Internationale de Ski

“1964 to 1976, twelve years only, a rather short interval according to general standards, separate the two Winter Games awarded to Innsbruck.

Athletes and officials are looking forward to the Games with great hopes and expectations.

For the existing facilities the best possible after-use has been found—possibly a solution to the problems of size and cost of future Olympic Games.

New, more realistic and liberal eligibility rules have permitted athletes adequate preparation and training for highest honours and allow them to participate in the Games in honesty and fairness.

May the opportunities offered in Innsbruck be used by all concerned in the best possible way for the future of the Winter Games as a proud and respected feature of the Olympic movement.”
