

The picture of the month

The Polish Olympic Committee has sent to the Review's editors a photograph of great interest from the Interpress agency in Warsaw, a photo which could be used as the theme in a "Do you know this man?" contest. The skier who seems to be viewing the slope with a tinge of concern is not Austrian Toni Sailer, 1956 Olympic champion in Cortina. Nor is it Jean Vuarnet, 1960 French gold-medallist in Squaw Valley... Simpler than that, it is Pope John Paul II, a ski lover, practising his favourite sport before leaving for the Vatican.
