

CALGARY AT THE MUSEUM

Hidy and Howdy, the polar bear mascots of the XVth Winter Games, have been in action once again, wearing their famous smiles to greet visitors to the Olympic Museum in Lausanne, which is organizing a retrospective exhibition of the great moments in Calgary.

A real treasure trove, this exhibition presents the public with a host of exhibits large and small, including equipment donated by famous athletes, venue entrance tickets, uniforms worn at the athletes' parade and those of the volunteers to whom the President has often paid tribute for their magnificent contribution, medals, coins, pins, autographs, torches and other paraphernalia.

At the exhibition preview, we were privileged to have some of the great champions attending in person, with the presence of Erika Hess, Hippolyt Kempf, Nordic combined gold medallist and Freddy Glanzmann, silver medallist. For the rest of the time visitors will have to be content with videos, but the astounding pictures are sure to provide a source of constantly-renewed pleasure.
