

size, accommodating 6 000 athletes at a time. Iceland is running an Olympic fever as hot as the climate is cold.

The world's largest sports arena ? It isn't Chicago's Soldier's Field or the Los Angeles Coliseum. In Rio de Janeiro there's a stadium holding 210 000 spectators !

Domestically, with each Olympic Games comes the problem of selecting the U. S. team. Other countries can hand-pick their squad from a few stars, but we have so many candidates that the only fair approach is a series of exhausting qualifying tests. Only three men can be named in each event, and any committee which arbitrarily selected three out of the eligible thousands would be howled out of the country. More than once, potential Olympic victors have had to be left behind.

RUSSIA'S SIGNED UP

It is vital that they performed especially well at Helsinki. Russia came out from behind the Iron Curtain, the first display of Russian sport strength in the Games since 1912.

True, both spectators and sports officials have objected strenuously to dictator-nation participation. Delegates from various sections of the world have spoken out with heat against meeting any oppressors in friendly competition.

In all cases, they were voted down. We — the rest of the world — can meet on the field of sport, where fair play must prevail, with men of any political philosophy. Perhaps the results will reach even inside the walls of the Kremlin. For by taking part, the U. S. S. R., with the other nations, have accepted the Olympian creed, the very core of which is expressed in these words :

May we display cheerfulness and concord that the Olympic torch may be carried on with ever greater eagerness, courage and honor for the good of humanity through the ages.
