

THE 1982 COMMONWEALTH GAMES: A RETROSPECT

The Australian Studies Centre (Humanities and Social Sciences) of the University of Queensland organised a seminar in March, 1983 because, in the words of Dr. Paul Reynolds who was then Director of the A.S.C., "the Games had acted as a catalyst for a number of inter-related social, political and economic problems which confront Queensland and Australian society. The Seminar Papers were published in 1984 and included the following:

1. Race and Community Relations: Land Rights

The Land Rights Movement after the Games
Lilla Watson
Griffith University, Land Rights and the Games
Lyndall Ryan

2. Media and Community Self Images

The Games v Land Rights as a Media Event
Adrian McGregor
On Being the Host Broadcaster: Producing the Games
Rory Sutton
Queensland and Brisbane as a Focus for Advertising Strategies and the Games
John M. Garnsey

3. Women and the Games

Women at the Commonwealth Games: An Historical Perspective
Reet Howell
The Games and the Place of Women in Australian Sport and Society
Libby Darlison

4. The Political Impact of the Games

Statements by Angus Innes, M.L.A., Terry O'Gorman, Margaret Cribb

The publication is available from The Australian Studies Centre, University of Queensland, at a cost of $6 for members of ASC or $8 for non-members.