

JOURNALS REQUESTING CONTRIBUTIONS FROM ASSH MEMBERSLEISURE SCIENCES

The U.S.-based journal Leisure Sciences is anxious to broaden both its substance and geographical coverage. The current editor, Dr. Don Field, has stated that manuscripts on leisure and either urban or outdoor recreation from researchers in Australia would be welcome. Both data-based and theoretical papers in either quantitative or qualitative work are acceptable.

Manuscripts should be sent to Or. George Stankey, U.S.D.A. Forest Service, Intermountain Research Station, P.O. Box 8089, Missoula, MT59807 U.S.A. Further information is available from Ely Hamilton-Smith, Department of Leisure Studies, Phillip Institute of Technology, Plenty Rd., Bundoora, Victoria, 3053 (Telephone: 03-4682512).

CODE 13: A NEW RUGBY LEAGUE JOURNAL IN BRITAIN

Trevor Delaney, the Managing Editor of Code 13 has requested contributions:

Code 13 is a new rugby league journal to be published during the 1986/7 season - a season which marks 80 years of 13-aside football.

The visit of the Australian tourists provides another good reason to launch a new publication on the game.

One aim of the journal is to celebrate all aspects of the game's heritage through rare photographs and detailed histories. Another is to establish a Hall of Fame in print.

It will also be alive to the issues which are important today and will act as a forum for debate among supporters and officials alike. Research into present developments and future trends within rugby league will also be undertaken.

Contributions are welcomed on all topics of rugby league, from short anecdotes to full length research projects, from player profiles to possible serialised histories. Terms are available on request.

Particularly needed are action and player photographs which can be loaned for copying negatives or alternatively purchased from ASSH members.

Further information is available from Trevor Delaney, 6 Elmwood Terrace, Ingrow, Keighley, West Yorkshire, BD22 7DP, United Kingdom