

Just Between You and Us

DOWN in "the big city," a few months ago, they decided to put up a fifty-story building. It was the biggest thing of the kind ever attempted. But one day they decided to tack on a couple of more stories just because they had room. So it is with THE BASEBALL MAGAZINE. Its fifty stories were the baseball, and one day it decided to tack on a couple of stories—football. Hundreds of letters have been flowing in to attest that our readers like this addition. We've got a supply of the greatest football articles and stories you ever read, to give you for the next few months. There's only one Walter Camp, and he'll continue to give you his authoritative articles in succeeding numbers. Isn't "A Grand Stand Play," by that well-known writer, Porter Emerson Browne, in this number just the best ever? For next month's magazine he has written another story, "A Relapse," that's fully as good. And speaking of next month, Harris Merton Lyon, one of the best known story writers of "the big city," gives you "The Missing Teeth." He has other yarns up his sleeve just as good, which you'll get from month to month.

When the diamond is covered with snow-drifts, when the wind is howling at a 100-mile an hour rate, what a pleasure it will be to throw off your cold damp boots for warm house slippers, to light your meerschaum (or cob) and get down before a warm fire with the good old BASEBALL MAGAZINE, and live over past victories and defeats, as you read of just what Cy Young is doing on the farm this winter, how many games of checkers Christy Mathewson has won, etc. THE BASEBALL MAGAZINE will help you to look forward in the future and keep you alive on things baseballic till the diamond is green again.

If you could just look over the great supply of the most wonderful little baseball stories we have saved up for you "fans" for this winter, you would not hesitate one minute to send in $1.50 for THE BASEBALL MAGAZINE. Look here, if you'll send in $1.50 now we'll send you THE BASEBALL MAGAZINE for one year, also the first six numbers of the magazine free, so that your files may be complete, and will also send you free, either The Baseball Magazine Pocket Lighter, The Burnham Safety Razor, or The Baseball Magazine Fountain Pen. (Descriptions of same may be found in the advertising section.) This offer is too good to miss, and it's only open till the tenth of November. We can't hold it open longer, for our supply of the six back numbers of the magazine is limited. See the point? Then send today.
