Football Studies is a fully refereed bi-annual journal that publishes work from the historical, sociological, geographical, political, economic and cultural studies areas of any code of football. Each issue contains fully refereed articles, viewpoint articles and commentaries, research essays and reviews that focus primarily on innovative and theoretical approaches to the study of the role of football codes in societies. The material published in Football Studies is copyright of the Football Studies Group. Opinions expressed are those of individual authors and not necessarily those of the editors or the Football Studies Group. Reproduction without consent of the editor and individual author is not permitted. Submission guidelines are at the end of the journal. The Football Studies Group was founded in 1997 by scholars wishing to bring together researchers working on the world's major football codes.
