

MESSAGE FROM THE EDITORS

As the first issue of the Journal of Olympic History under our editorship went to press we hoped that we had produced an issue with interesting articles and Olympic information. We were lucky that a lot of members wrote saying that they enjoyed reading the articles, reviews, messages and so on. We really appreciated all the warm compliments you sent us by letters and e-mails, and would like to say thank you for your kindness, but praise should also go to our co-editors, the layout designer and all who have made contributions to publish an interesting journal.

When we planned the content and structure of the issue at hand, we realised that we have still a reserve of several interesting articles still to be published.

Unfortunately, we cannot publish all the articles in one issue. We have to distribute them in different forthcoming issues. We ask the authors of the articles for their patience. Although we have still have plenty of articles in reserve for the next few issues, we always look to receiving new material. It is a pleasure for us to read them and to consider the right issue for them.
