

Historical Journal on Sports

The fall 1973 issue of The Maryland Historian is devoted entirely to sport history. Articles by both historians and physical educators cover a wide sampling of this rapidly growing field, including "The Modern Olympic Games," by John A. Lucas; "Women and Competitive Athletics," by Mary Lou Remley; "Professional Sunday Baseball," by Steven Riess; "World War I and the Emergence of Sport for the Masses," by Guy Lewis; "Academicians and Athletics: Historians' Views of American Sport," by Melvin L. Adelman; and book review essays on "Sport in Antiquity," by Stephen H. Hardy; and "Black Athletes in White Men's Games," by W. Manning Mat-able. Issues may be purchased for three dollars from The Maryland Historian, Department of History, University of Maryland, College Park, Md. 20742
