
Sport, Work, and Alienation Workshop

The Department of Sociology at the University of New Haven will sponsor a symposium on "Sport, Work, and Alienation" on March 19, 1980. The major theme will be sport as work since its rationalization and commercialization in modern industrial society. Panelists, including athletes, lawyers, sociologists, coaches, and professional franchise owners, will discuss and debate collective bargaining, growth of unions, the NCAA, college coach role conflict, and athlete exploitation and alienation. For additional information please contact Prof. Allen Sack, Department of Sociology, University of New Haven, West Haven, CT 06516.
