

Doing Baseball History

Peter Levine

Michigan State University

This paper focused on the research and publication side of baseball history. It treated the presenter's experiences in writing A. G. Spalding and the Rise o/American Baseball, his work with Oxford University Press, and especially his service as editor of Baseball History. Reviewing his editorial and writing experiences and a current project on the Jewish Experience in Sport, Dr. Levine emphasized themes that make baseball history accessible to a wider audience and examined the relative merits of some of the better known, recently produced books on the history of baseball.
