

Oh Rose-leaf! flushing when the South
Doth woo thee with a warm caress,
Thy dainty hues enchant me less
Than Hebe's rosebud cheek and mouth;

For nothing ever can repair
Thy tender blushes when they fade;
But Hebe, happy little maid!
Hath Ivory Soap to keep her fair.

Copyright 1896, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cin'ti.

