THE GREAT MLS SACK RACE

Here are the results of the socceramerica.com February poll, in which 954 online fans predicted which MLS coach would be the first to quit or be fired in the 2000 season.

IVO GETS THE HEAVE-HO?

1st Place
Ivo Wortmann (Miami)—25.3%
One quarter of you said the Fusion coach would be the first to go.

AX ME, AX ME, AX ME

2nd
Octavio Zambrano (MetroStars)—15.1%
3rd Tom Fitzgerald (Columbus)—11.2%
4th Tim Hankinson (Tampa Bay)—10.3%
5th Glenn Myernick (Colorado)—9.3%
6th Fernando Clavijo (New England)—8.7%
6th Bob Gansler (Kansas City)—8.7%
You generously gave Octavio exactly ZERO games to sort out New York.

"Who's gonna win? ... Oh man, I know this one!"

JOB SECURITY?

8th Lothar Osiander (San Jose)—5.3%
9th David Dir (Dallas)—2.5%
10th Sigi Schmid (Los Angeles)—1.9%
11th Bob Bradley (Chicago)—0.9%
Apparently Bob's staying on the job.

GOOD TO BE KING

12th Thomas Rongen (D.C. United)—0.2%
You say the Revs' discard is going nowhere anytime soon.

BUT WILL HE DO IT AGAIN? ROCK THE MARCH FAN POLL

hit the net! Visit socceramerica.com. Click "Monthly Poll" from the interactive area, and tell us: Who will win MLS Cup 2000?

Who has what it takes to silence this talk of dynasty and knock D.C. on its can?
Foxboro choke artists L.A. Galaxy?

1997 upstarts Colorado Rapids? Will Chicago shake the sophomore slump? Can they do it in Dallas? America's Hardest-Working Whipping Boys? The new-look top-heavy Fusion — or someone else from the back of the pack? Or (shudder) will it be UNITED AGAIN? Let's hear from you.

Voting runs through March 31, 2000. Check this page for the results.

Life as these players know it is about to end. Here, young recruits begin their journey to the next level. It will require dedication, commitment and schooling in the world's finest sporting tradition: Italian football. There are no smiling faces, just anxiety over the unknown trials yet to come. From this point forward, there are no individuals. That mullet, son? It goes, too. This is Diadora Boot Camp.

THE YEAR IS 2014.
