

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

RAY CRAWFORD is Head of the Physical Education Department at the Phillip Institute of Technology. He is national covenor of the ACHPER special interest group concerned with the history and philosophy of physical education and sport. In 1980 he organised the inaugural national symposium of the group and edited the collected papers as Innovators and Influences. He has a particular interest in the social history of physical education and sport with distinct reference to education.

CHRIS MCCONVILLE is a Lecturer in Urban Studies at the Footscray Institute of Technology. He recently completed a Ph.D. on Irish migrants in Melbourne and Sydney and is presently researching into urban recreation patterns in the period 1919-1939.

COLIN TATZ was born and educated in South Africa. He was foundation Professor of Politics at the University of New England and since 1982 has been Professor of Politics at MacQuarie University. He has published books on race politics in South Africa and Australia and currently is preparing for publication of a book of essays on sports criticism.

WRAY VAMPLEW is Reader in Economic History at The Flinders University of South Australia. He has published generally on aspects of commercialised sport in Britain and currently is researching on professional sport as a career. In addition to editing Sporting Traditions he is also editor of the Australian Historical Statistics volume of the Bicentennial History.