

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

SCOTT BENNETT is a Senior Lecturer in Political Science at the Australian National University. His main area of research is Australian political history in which his publications include The Making of the Commonwealth (1971), Federation (1975), Biographical Register of the Tasmanian Parliament 1851-1960 (1980), Handbook of Tasmanian Elections 1851-1982 (1985). His work on sports history includes The Clarence Comet (1973), a biography of the Australian professional sculler, Henry Searle. He has also written on hunting in colonial India.

ROBIN GROW is a Project Analyst at the Titles Office but became interested in sports history when taking his B.A. at Swinburne College. He is currently researching the social history of football in nineteenth century Melbourne and Geelong.

IAN HARRISS lectures in History and Western Tradition at the Riverina-Murray Institute of Higher Education, Murray Campus. He is working on a book on cricket and culture.

CLIVE MORLEY is a Lecturer in Statistics and Quantitative Techniques at the Footscray Institute of Technology. He has extensive research and consulting experience on transportation problems as well as being an avid Essendon fan.

BOB STEWART is a Lecturer in Sports Studies at the Footscray Institute of Technology.

NEVILLE TURNER is a Senior Lecturer in Law at Monash University and is also President of the Children's Bureau of Australia Incorporated. He is the co-editor of a book on Sport and the Law and has also written several articles on this subject.

KEN WILSON is a Senior Lecturer in Economics at the Footscray Institute of Technology and has published widely on industry, economic and labour market problems. He confesses to supporting Melbourne.