

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

TOM ARMSTRONG is a postgraduate student at Macquarie University working under the supervision of Professor Colin Tatz. His Ph.D, research analyses sport and recreation policy from 1975 to the present. He is an active orienteer.

DAVE BROWN is a post-doctoral research fellow at the University of Queensland. His research interests are in the area of sport and the empire with particular reference to education and prevailing social attitudes.

CHRIS CUNNEEN is a research officer with the N.S.W. Bureau of Crime Statistics and Research. He is interested in popular culture, leisure and the policing/regulation of social space.

DAVID HEADON lectures in English at the Australian Defence Force Academy. His interests include nineteenth century Australian literature, Northern Territory and Aboriginal studies. His weaknesses include the sport of kings.

DARWIN SEMOTIUK is an associate professor in the Faculty of Physical Education at the University of Western Ontario. He is a past chairman of the History Committee of C.A.H.P.E.R. and in 1981/82 was visiting professor at Flinders University.

GRAEME KINROSS SMITH is senior lecturer in Australian Studies and Creative Writing at Deakin University. He has published widely in poetry and prose fiction, literacy criticism and biography, creative writing, as well as on sporting history, particularly the areas of royal tennis and lawn tennis.