

Editorial Preface

The cosmetic changes which marked the previous issue of Sporting Traditions were not all successful, so I should thank all those readers who refrained from offering their opinions on our new style. This issue continues the evolutionary process which we hope will lead (without too much more change) to a stable appearance for the journal, for at least five years.

To date A.S.S.H. has been remarkably successful in keeping down its membership subscriptions costs but that does mean that Sporting Traditions must tread a fine line between low-cost production and quality appearance.

John O'Hara
University of Western Sydney, Macarthur